

An Important Part of the KSH: the IF

Continuing Education and Qualification

The continuing education and qualification courses offered by the Institute for Advanced and Further Training (IF) are geared to meet the needs in the field for further qualification. The IF programme helps social workers and health care professionals keep their skills up to date in their profession.

In addition to one-off courses of one or several days, the IF also offers two master programmes in Social Work and Addiction Therapy for field workers.

Research and Development

Due to the complex requirements in the practice of social work as well as nursing and health care, the professions must establish and develop their own academic standards. Owing to its excellent links in the field, the KSH Munich is especially qualified to perform research of benefit to field workers in particular.

The KSH gives lecturers the means to actively participate in research – and students are encouraged to take part.

About Us

The Katholische Stiftungshochschule München, University of Applied Sciences (KSH) is a nationally and internationally renowned university qualifying professionals for the social, nursing and education sectors under the auspices of and funded by the Catholic Church.

Practical Focus

At its two campuses in Benediktbeuern and Munich, the KSH provides approximately 2,400 students with a well-founded study programme which is distinguished by its high practical relevance.

Geared to the individual

With their degree, KSH students are prepared for planning, conceptual and management positions in the fields of social and educational work and health care. Students receive professional advice but are also supported personally by qualified lecturers. As a result of the relatively small student body, the atmosphere at the university is family-like, where there is direct communication between students and lecturers.

The Three Faculties

There are three fields of study at the KSH:

- Social Work Benediktbeuern
- Social Work Munich
- Healthcare and Nursing

The KSH faculties advise students professionally and personally as well as support them with their particular concerns or important decisions about their studies. When counselling our students, we emphasise expertise in combination with mutual appreciation and assistance.
